THE QUEEN’S BINDERY APPRENTICESHIP

A FIVE-YEAR APPRENTICESHIP IN HAND BOOKBINDING
The Queen’s Bindery Apprenticeship

Hand bookbinding forms an important part of our national heritage. Founded by George III in 1770, the Royal Bindery in Windsor Castle is at the forefront of preserving the high standards of craftsmanship that are the benchmark of the professional bookbinding trade.

Formal apprenticeships are vital to the long-term survival and sustainability of the craft. Expertise in such techniques as edge-gilding and gold finishing may be lost for ever unless action is taken now to preserve these skills.

The Queen’s Bindery Apprenticeship scheme combines the traditional approach of the apprenticeship system with a teaching programme based on gaining vocational qualifications. The training will equip apprentices to undertake binding work to a recognised level and to understand the business and commercial aspects of bookbinding.

Led by Royal Collection Trust, the scheme is supported by a national group of partners including City of London livery companies and the Queen Elizabeth Scholarship Trust (QEST). It will commence in the Autumn of 2016 with a seven-year pilot taking in new apprentices over three consecutive years to follow a five-year programme.

City & Guilds assessment criteria will be used to measure and certify the apprenticeship programme and ensure it meets its statutory requirements.

Apprentices will be indentured with a livery company and upon successful completion of the apprenticeship they will be made Freeman of the company. Those demonstrating excellence will be eligible to apply for a QEST Scholarship to further their careers.

There is no substitute for learning a craft in a professional workshop. The continuance of this valuable trade requires a system of teaching that will ensure the finest standards of craftsmanship are passed on to future generations.

The Scheme

The apprenticeship will be for five years, during which apprentices will acquire a broad range of bookbinding skills. In the first two years they will be based at the Royal Bindery in Windsor; in the following three years they will spend increasing time in outside workshops, gaining considerable practical experience. The final year will take place almost entirely in a participating workshop.

City & Guilds qualifications will provide the basis of the curriculum: the existing two levels will be extended to create new ones reflecting the full spectrum of the craft at high level. Each apprentice will be individually mentored throughout by a member of one of the participating livery companies.

At the end of the second year, having gained foundation level qualifications and valuable work experience, apprentices will have learned the techniques required for entry to commercial employment should they choose to leave the programme at this point. There will be a full assessment of all those wishing to continue, with successful candidates being formally indentured to their mentor and progressing to the next three years.

Apprentices will initially receive the living wage, with incremental rises in line with statutory requirements, plus assistance with accommodation in Windsor during the first two years and subsidy for travel expenses.

The Syllabus: Professional Skills

This training will be provided in a mixture of on-the-job instruction and optional formal coursework arranged by and through the scheme’s partners. It reflects the skills and knowledge required to successfully run a small business.

Learning the Basics

Objective: gain a grounding in basic administration and computer skills.
- Answering the telephone, taking messages, accepting deliveries and checking inventory.
- Keeping a written diary and timesheets.
- Microsoft Word for writing letters, Outlook for emails and diary and Excel for basic book-keeping.

Good Practice in the Workshop

Objective: acquire knowledge of how work is costed and the process of estimating and invoicing in a small workshop.
- Selecting appropriate materials and avoiding wastage.
- How to write a letter to a customer or supplier.
- Learning how ‘time and cost sheets’ are used for estimating. Preparing a simple bill or invoice.

Business Theory

Objective: identify the main financial and practical skills required to set up a small business.
- How much equipment and materials are needed to start a bindery.
- Create a simple income and expenditure account, budget and cashflow in Excel.
- How to identify potential customers, create a mailing list and set up a basic website.
- Design a business card and simple brochure.

Self-Employment

Objective: understand the main issues in being self-employed.
- The difference between Limited Liability Companies and self-employment.
- Alternative ways of financing a new business.
- Working from home or finding premises.
- Health and safety legislation and business insurance.

The Partners

Founding Partners
Charities supporting the scheme financially over the seven-year pilot:
Antiquarian Booksellers Association
City & Guilds of London Institute
The Clothworkers’ Company
The Leathersellers’ Company
The Printing Charity
Queen Elizabeth Scholarship Trust
Royal Collection Trust
The Stationers’ Company

Contributing Partners
Supporters contributing materials, equipment and specialist training. They include:

Interested potential contributors are invited to contact the scheme. Please see details on the back cover.

Skills & Industry Partners
Key participants who will directly benefit from employing the apprentices and in exchange contribute to the overall costs by paying a proportion of apprentices’ salaries while they gain experience in their workshops:
The Royal Bindery
Blissett Bookbinders
Shepherds, Sangorski & Sutcliffe

Oversight

The scheme will be governed by a Steering Group chaired by The Librarian & Assistant Keeper of The Queen’s Archives and administered by the Royal Library. The Group will include representatives of all the Founding and Skills & Industry Partners and meet at least twice a year.

Two sub-committees will have responsibility for financial and training governance. Both sub-committees will report to the Steering Group on at least an annual basis and include members of the Steering Group as well as other parties as required.

Apprentices will be line managed at Windsor by a Royal Bindery Senior Book Conservator-Restorer.
